Chart Recurrent Methodology

When does a song move to recurrent on the chart? It is one of the more challenging issues we encountered in creating the CDX TRACtion Texas chart system. Rather than relying on subjective editorial decisions, we’ve chosen to automate this process using the weekly chart data as a marker.

We strive to avoid having singles past their prime create a logjam on the chart, because that stifles upward momentum for up-and-coming singles. But we also try to ensure that singles “on the bubble” are not removed prematurely. As long-time chart watchers know, singles often take a while to establish a solid base among early believers at radio before they truly find their legs. Due to any number of reasons, the path to peak chart position rarely includes straight-line, week-over-week spin and/or chart position growth.

On a monitored airplay chart like CDX TRACtion Texas, the reality is that new singles bounce around a bit spin-wise and position-wise, particularly in the lower half of the chart. Even small spin increases and decreases can be magnified as fairly significant up-or-down chart position moves.

With this in mind, the CDX TRACtion Texas recurrent policy grades each chart position on a curve, using an algorithm that considers the chart position and spin history for that song. Newly serviced singles are allowed 20 weeks to chart before being removed from chart consideration. Once a status change is actively being considered by the algorithm, the cumulative amount of spin loss from the single’s previous peak spin count is the trigger. The allowable spin loss varies as a percentage, depending on the chart position.

In addition to making sure that only singles with significant downward movement become recurrent, this methodology also benefits slow-developing singles in several ways. For instance, the allowable spin loss (as a percentage) is very generous at the lower reaches of the chart to accommodate the lower spin counts. Additionally, if a single is at risk of being moved to recurrent status with two consecutive weeks of minor spin loss, it can still return to positive spin growth the following week, which will reset the clock.

THIS WEEK'S FEATURED ARTIST • DAVID ADAM BYRNES

David Adam Byrnes made the move to Nashville at the age of 19 in 2008 to pursue his dream of becoming a country music singer. Within his first year he would sign a record deal only to discover he would be writing songs for the bigger named acts. While Nashville liked his songs, they said he was "Too Country" for the Nashville Country Music Scene. In 2013 a new chapter began. Now a free man able to ditch the "bro country" songs he had been writing to satisfy the Nashville appetite, he circled back to his own personal style of honky tonk country and focused, once again, on the stage. The first time he heard Cody Johnson on the radio he became a man in a trance. This was "his sound," the one he left behind years ago. He was soon introduced to Trent Willmon who produced Cody Johnson, and the two began a songwriting relationship. With Willmon's help, David would open for Cody Johnson and the buzz about moving to Texas quickly swarmed him. The "proverbial straw" came when Aaron Watson told David after a show that he should not waste another minute in Nashville, and to get down to Texas. In 2018, David made the move to the Ft. Worth and released his first single "Beer Bucket List" which became his first # 1 on the Texas music charts. In October 2020, David released his full album "Neon Town", which made its debut in the Top 5 on the iTunes Country Music chart. Now with 5 consecutive # 1 songs, a music video that was premiered by CMT and a nomination for "New Male Vocalist of the Year " at The Texas Regional Radio Awards, David Adam Byrnes is bringing that old school country sound back to country music. This is his newest release "One Honkytonk Town"
