Chart Recurrent Methodology

When does a song move to recurrent on the chart? It is one of the more challenging issues we encountered in creating the CDX TRACtion Texas chart system. Rather than relying on subjective editorial decisions, we’ve chosen to automate this process using the weekly chart data as a marker.

We strive to avoid having singles past their prime create a logjam on the chart, because that stifles upward momentum for up-and-coming singles. But we also try to ensure that singles “on the bubble” are not removed prematurely. As long-time chart watchers know, singles often take a while to establish a solid base among early believers at radio before they truly find their legs. Due to any number of reasons, the path to peak chart position rarely includes straight-line, week-over-week spin and/or chart position growth.

On a monitored airplay chart like CDX TRACtion Texas, the reality is that new singles bounce around a bit spin-wise and position-wise, particularly in the lower half of the chart. Even small spin increases and decreases can be magnified as fairly significant up-or-down chart position moves.

With this in mind, the CDX TRACtion Texas recurrent policy grades each chart position on a curve, using an algorithm that considers the chart position and spin history for that song. Newly serviced singles are allowed 20 weeks to chart before being removed from chart consideration. Once a status change is actively being considered by the algorithm, the cumulative amount of spin loss from the single’s previous peak spin count is the trigger. The allowable spin loss varies as a percentage, depending on the chart position.

In addition to making sure that only singles with significant downward movement become recurrent, this methodology also benefits slow-developing singles in several ways. For instance, the allowable spin loss (as a percentage) is very generous at the lower reaches of the chart to accommodate the lower spin counts. Additionally, if a single is at risk of being moved to recurrent status with two consecutive weeks of minor spin loss, it can still return to positive spin growth the following week, which will reset the clock.

Dance Time In Texas with DJ Mike (05/30/23)

THIS WEEK'S FEATURED ARTIST • JARET RAY REDDICK

Kyle Park's musical influences are deeply rooted in classic country artists such as Roger Miller, Merle Haggard, and George Jones. Growing up, he spent time with his dad, who introduced him to the storytelling style of the Opry legends. These experiences had a profound impact on Kyle and inspired him to follow in their footsteps. Unfortunately, Kyle experienced the loss of his father in 1998. During this challenging time, he found healing in country music. At the age of 14, he decided to pick up a guitar, which became a transformative moment for him. From that point forward, Kyle Park dedicated himself to his musical journey and never looked back. Kyle's skill for creatively writing music has improved over time. One of his earlier songs, "Fit for the King," caught the attention of George Strait, Using over 31 number 1 George Strait titles to make up the lyrics of the song.

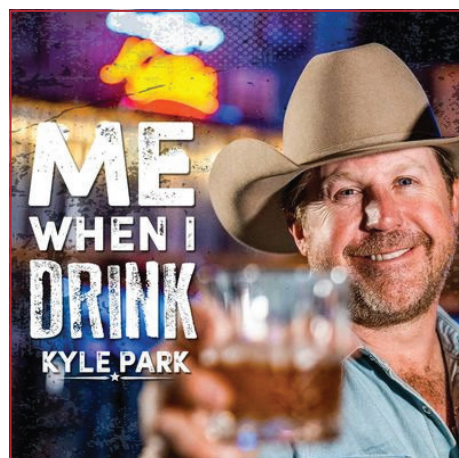

2023 is shaping up to be a successful year for Kyle Park. Not only did he achieve another number 1 single with "What's Your Drinking Song," but his latest release, "Me When I Drink," is also gaining traction and has already made its way into the top 20.
